

Luise Dziobek-Garrett Bio

Luise Dziobek-Garrett is an Investment Manager at Northwestern University's Investment Office where she focuses on public and private equity investments and leads the endowment's asset allocation strategy. In this capacity, Luise conducts research and analysis across global markets, evaluates investment opportunities, and helps inform strategic decisions that align with the University's long-term objectives. Luise also co-teaches a class on the Theories of Financial Investing at Northwestern alongside Chief Investment Officer Amy Falls. Northwestern University's Investment Office, located in Evanston, IL, outside of Chicago, manages $15 billion to support the mission of the University.

Prior to joining Northwestern, Luise served as an investor at Cornell University's endowment, working across all asset classes, including Real Assets, Private Investments, and Marketables. Luise earned her B.Sc. in Physiology and Physics from McGill University and her M.Sc. in Complex Systems Modelling from King's College London. Luise is a CFA charterholder.